CATARRH

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE.

Messrs Weeks & Potter—Gentlemen—I feel compelled to acknowledge to you the great benefit SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE has been to me. One week after commencing the use of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE I was free from trouble, which it at all. My senses of taste and smell which were nearly gone have now fully returned, and my general health is improved. Yours,

Gentlemen:—The sales of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE in this place have been so rapid that I think it should have done it, had not I been fearful that some of the cases I have heard reported of failure to effect a cure, although I have not ceased to stop the offensive discharge, I have not heard a complaint against the CURE. A SCATHING SPEECH.

SENATOR CONKLING'S ARRAIGNMENT OF THE DEMOCRATS.

In the Senate on Friday night, while the Democrats, who had been struggling for nearly a week to force Butler into the Senate without any inquiry whatever, were demanding that the Kellogg case, already examined and reported, should be sent back for more investigation, Senator Conkling took the floor and administered the masterly rebuke reported are the following extracts from the Congressional Record:

Mr. Conkling. Mr. President, while the honorable Senator is looking for that, I should like to ask a question, if I do not interrupt public business.

Mr. Wallleigh. Certainly. I do not propose to look it up now, for I will have no question.

Mr. Conkling. I should like to know whether the refusal of the committee to stop the whole of proceedings while they went to Louisiana for witnesses to enquire whether somebody had made an irregular complaint, was before or after the high sounding declaration with which we met, a few days ago, when the committee was assigned, because it had not sooner made report in the Kellogg case. The days were then counted up while the subject had been before the committee, and some months of time all which there was no trouble or were counted due, and the vacation was put in to kill the volume of time during which the members of the committee had neglected the public and came short in that diligence and prompt devotion of attention demanded by the urgent importance of the issue aggravated, as was only the fact that a sovereign state had been kept without a representative on this floor, and so on. I should like to know whether the reason to halt and go foraging after the evidence, now compelled of, took place in the committee before or after the indefinite or irregular report of the committee in the closing of the session of the country.

Mr. Hill. Will the senator from New Hampshire allow me?

Mr. Conkling. I am addressing my question to the Senator from New Hampshire, Mr. President.

Mr. Hill. I will state in answer to my friend the Senator from New York—

Mr. Hill. I should like to be allowed the privilege of answering that question.

Mr. Wallleigh. That the decision of the committee to close the case, to act upon it finally, to which no made objection was made in the committee, was taken till this complaint that the committee were delaying the case.

Mr. Conkling. After these statements in the Senate?

Mr. Wallleigh. Yes.

Mr. McDonald. I should like to ask my friend from New Hampshire if any complaints have been made in the Senate or elsewhere in regard to their want of diligence in going forward with the Kellogg-Spofford case, if so, who has made them, from what quarter have they come?

Mr. Wallleigh. I think that the record will bear me out in the statement that it was proposed to discharge the committee from the consideration of this case on the ground that it was not necessary to take any testimony whatever.

Mr. McDonald. By whom? Is the Senator from Vermont? [Mr. Edmunds.]

Mr. Wallleigh. It was alleged in the beginning that this was so simple a case, so plain a case, so obvious a case on the right of Mr. Spofford to have a seat in this Chamber, that it was not even necessary to send it to any committee at all.

Mr. Conkling. May I interrupt again?

Mr. Wallleigh. Certainly.

Mr. Conkling. I feel moved to do so because of my having put the Senator from New Hampshire in a position now challenged as to its truthfulness. In consequence of my question he has alleged that it was charged in the Senate that the committee had been in some degree the relief in the Kellogg-Spofford case, and that the action of that committee touching that case was criticised. Let me relieve the Senator from New Hampshire and his recollection from all responsibility in that regard. I make the assertion myself that it was decided that there was needed by the committee, and further that it was charged that the committee had been dilatory in regard to the case. I affirm that a Democratic Senator—more than one—arraigned the Committee of Privileges and Elections because of its delay, counted up the days that elapsed at the last session of the Senate, counted up the interval of the vacation although the committee was then out of existence, and charged upon it tardiness and short-comings.

I say further that a Democratic Senator insisted that the credentials of Spofford and Kellogg should not be referred to the committee at all, and so insisted upon the allegation that no further investigation of the facts was necessary and that the needed facts were all known and fixed. The honorable Senator from Illinois not now in his seat [Mr. Davis] grounded, as declared in a remark he made to the Senate, his vote against a reference of that case and his vote in favor of a reference of the Eustis case, upon the supposed distinction that in the Spofford-Kellogg case no investigation in committee was necessary, but that in the Eustis case the confusion of papers, termed credentials, was such that an investigation should occur.

I charge further, borrowing a word somewhat novel in the discussions of the Senate, and which I will withdraw—I allege further that it was said by a Senator on the other side that this case was just as clear without investigation or evidence as if Kellogg had died and the Senate had gone to his funeral; that events, events which the world knew, events of which the Senate would and must take judicial notice, determined absolutely beyond peradventure or inquiry the right of Spofford to take his seat; and I hold up the record to prove that my recollection is not at fault.

I call attention, the attention of the Senate—I heard yesterday a declaration of what, "the country shall know"—had I commandment of what "the country shall know," as some members of the Senate seem to suppose, they have, I would call the attention of the country also, to the fact that Senators of the same party which recently waked the echoes with the din of accusation, that the Committee on Privileges and Elections had procrastinated and delayed, and that too in a case wherein not the slightest reason existed to calm witness or to prove a fact or conduct an investigation, now, when the case is presented by a report, and when the Senate waits to be counted on the question whether one or the other of the contestants is entitled to be seated, clamor for delay, cry out for procrastination, and maneuver for time, by insisting that instead of the truth being as heretofore asserted by them and in their behalf, the Committee on Privileges and Elections should become a police-court and go to the Gulf of Mexico for witnesses to ascertain the truth of allegations of fraud alleged at one of the contestants. And, curiously enough, the method is most vehemently supported by the same Senator who, on a memorable and recent night, was heard declaiming to the Senate about the immorality, the impertinence, the outlandishness and wrong of an inquiry whether a claimant of a seat in the Senate had not been privy to murder.

Mr. Wallleigh. To secure his election.

Mr. Conkling. And, as alleged, for the purpose of influencing his election. If I mistake not, I heard some indignation expressed that a gentleman, a gentleman of such consequence as to be thought of in a sovereign State in connection with the Senate of the United States, should be arraigned upon a question whether in truth he came here with his hands and face dripping with the blood of murder.

Mr. President, I had no purpose of entering into debate at this moment, but my credibility well nigh compels me to respond to the draft made upon it when I heard, not one Democratic Senator but more than one, almost before the echoes of their counter-arguments had died away, to complain that the Committee on Privileges and Elections had not longer delayed, had not investigated, had not went to a remote section of the country for evidence bearing only on a point which on the occasion just referred to was rejected as utterly foreign, impertinently remote from the duty of the Senate, and often by the Justice and right.

Before I sit down, if my friend will pardon me for one more it further, I will notice a remark which has not fell from the honorable Senator from Indiana. Complaint is not made, said he, of delay in the Kellogg-Spofford case. Complaint was made, in his understanding, of delay in cases coming after the Kellogg-Spofford case. Was that indeed the complaint? Complaint was made first that the committee had not concluded the Kellogg-Spofford case and secondly that it has neglected to address to go to other cases to come after and to consider them also? The complaint was so great as that, was it? So much the more galling is the inconsistency witnessed now.

Mr. McDonald. No, sir, the accompaniment of the Senator from New York that the other cases coming into it is not borne out by the record. They stood before it as far as the Senate is concerned.

Mr. Conkling. No, Mr. President, the record of the senate does not locate the situation under of the cases in the committee. My statement is borne out in a way as possible as is borne out by the statement of the Kellogg-Spofford case first, and then the other cases, for after sending, not by the record of the Senate, for the record of the Senate does not in any way determine the order of proceeding in the committee one way or the other. The conclusive fact is that the committee took the Kellogg case late consider cases first, and therefore the other cases must come after that case. All I now we are invited to remember that the Senate was not only that the Kellogg-Spofford case had not been put out of the way but that it had not been put out of the way so as to enable us to consider the other cases also.

Now when another and a fresh case has been by manifest overtaking, unready and unprepared, from the committee, now when the power of numbers has been report to be to set aside the rules and precedings of the Senate in order that nominally a fair case may be brought here without report and without conclusion; now when the committee unable has come to with a report in the Lonsdale case, now when the unwieldy majority of the Senate is ready to act upon that case in denial of the whole argument and contention of the party who in reliance of all the corruption and intimidation against the contention and of the nature of the case itself is heretofore asserted, Senators rise to insist that the Kellogg case, the first case taken up by the committee, the case which blocks all the others, which occupied the committee so that were disposed of, has been reported prematurely, and that it should have been kept back in the committee while process went from the capitol to the Gulf to bring witnesses to testify in respect of the personal conduct of the department, the public, proceedings of one of the contestants touching matters with which and in the hardest sense "name" applies. Proof is bad enough but it is not the highest order most known to the law.

Sir, I hope I assert that "the fitness of things" is not lightly violated by this latest phase of the affair. I think it would be difficult, if I may be pardoned for frankness, to do anything possible under the rules of the Senate, or under any construction into which they can be tortured, which would appear very ill in the most of recent proceedings. Such expedients of insinuation may be resorted to become nearly justifiable, in the midst of surrounding and enlivening events. If they stood alone almost anywhere, in any forum in any legislative body, and especially in the Senate of the United States, it seems to me that not only the actors but the people behind and before and beyond the Senate would neither with deep concern the checkered spectacle presented.

OPINIONS OF THE MESSAGE

Our despatches from New York show the significant fact that of the five leading journals of the metropolis, of all shades of politics, only one regards the President's Message with favor, and that one the Democratic World. The Times sarcastically refers to the President's statements about his Southern policy "from his point of view," his reticence as to details and the "somewhat remarkable indifference to facts on which he bases his claim to success." It is pleased that his position on the finance question is more favorable than it feared, but it notes that he says nothing on the important and imminent issue of subsidies, concerning which his attitude has been called in question, and is still left in doubt. The Tribune regards the "policy" portion as an "indirect apology," and with grim satire applauds his "vehement assurance that he will do all he can to maintain the rights of the colored people." It commends his financial position, but has a laugh at him for the reiteration of the civil service reform dogmas, "which he has so often allowed his Secretaries to violate." The Herald commends his regard for the public credit, gives his Southern policy argument "sounds like an apology," and that on the civil service question he makes "a retreat which is not a masterly one." The Sun, of course, pitches into the Message indiscriminately in pursuance of its crusade against the Presidential title. The World alone warmly indorses both the Southern policy and financial features of the Message. This certainly constitutes a remarkable and significant reception for the first Message of a Republican President.

The treatment of the Message by the thick-and-thin policy papers of Boston is thoroughly characteristic of their dunkeyism and impertinency. The Journal devotes a column to a review in which every utterance of the President is gushingly eulogized, without a word of criticism or any intimation of the possibility that a document emanating from the White House could contain anything but the most exalted statesmanship. It argues the whole matter from a lowbrow standpoint, saying:

"The President's treatment of his Southern policy is so frank and direct as possible, without the slightest trace of personal feeling or of any desire to put a better face upon the matter than the facts, open to the inspection of the country, give it a relish."

It goes on to say:

"One of the objects for which he was elected was to strengthen the Constitutional Amendments, by measures calculated to end the state of war at the South and promote harmony between the sections."

The Journal says he found that his first Cabinet must be the withdrawal of all National protection from State Governments in the South, and in view of the absolute nullification of the Constitutional Amendments which has succeeded it says:

"He points to the immense improvement at the South in the peace and order of society and the promotion of prosperity, as a fair and reasonable fruit of the success of the new policy."

This is the Journal's glowing picture of the "success" of the policy with which a Republican President has undertaken to "conciliate" the Southern Democracy and strengthen the Constitutional Amendments" by taking into his confidence and counsel such disinterested patriots as Wade Hampton, John B. Gordon, Alexander H. Stephens and M. C. Butler. But on the very same editorial page the Journal excludes from the benefits

A Democratic caucus was announced for to-morrow, after adjournment.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.

Comments of the New York Papers—The Herald calls it "a weak defence."

New York, Dec. 4. The Herald says of the message, that on the great questions of currency and public credit it is satisfactory. His argument regarding the southern policy sounds too much like an apology. His defence of his civil service measure is the weakest part of the message because he was under the necessity of executing a retreat which is not a masterly one.

"Remarkable Indifference to Facts."

The Times says the President's statement of his Southern policy is comprehensive and from his point of view conclusive. The disappointment which the country will now experience will proceed from the insufficiency of explanation measured by the standard of the Republican party, and from the somewhat remarkable indifference to facts upon which the President bases his claim to success. It is calculated to allay a good many apprehensions felt in regard to his position on questions affecting the currency and the public credit. It shows his attitude toward the other important issues of revenue reform, jobbities and civil service reform open to doubt.

"An Indirect Apology."

The Tribune commends the cheerful tone of the whole message and says it begins with an indirect apology for the Southern policy; applauds the President's vehement assurance that he will do all he can to maintain the rights of the colored people. It commends his treatment of the question of finance, which will greatly strengthen the party of hard money and fair dealing. He repeats the principles of civil service reform which he has so often stated and so often allowed his Secretaries to violate.

The World is Pleased.

The World says the President on the financial question has at last put himself distinctly on the side of common sense and common honesty. His recital of the good which has already resulted from his Southern policy is the best answer which he could have made to the attacks which that policy has provoked.

The Sun Contemptuous.

The Sun says of Hayes' message: Leave out its brazenly over his policy of pacification and over things which he claims to have done—but with which he had little or nothing to do—leave out his financial vagaries, his menace against Mexico, his Samoan project and his maundering about education; leave out, along with these, his abstracts of departmental reports, and the space occupied by the remainder will be small.

The Evening Papers.

The Evening Post applauds the President's message on his financial and Southern policy, but says: We will not attempt to conceal our disappointment as regards the civil service, revenue reform and subsidies.

The Commercial says that the President used a great many words to say very little and condemns the tone on all subjects except the financial part of the message.

The Express, says the message is very common place and prosy, and will have very little weight with Congress or the country.

WASHINGTON.

The Senate Standing Committees.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. The Republican Senators held a brief caucus to-day to provide for a revision of the membership of standing committees. Morrill, Windom, Booth, Dorsey, Oglesby, Allison and Howe were appointed a committee to revise the lists and report to a future meeting of the caucuses after ascertaining the wishes of the Democrats as to the assignment of their members.

It is probable that the minority will be given an increased representation upon such committees of importance as are not already divided with all possible equality between the two parties The Democrats have now four member out of nine on the following committees Appropriations, Foreign Relations, Commerce, Public Lands, Claims, and have three members out of seven on the Judiciary, but they have less than this proportion of strength on various other committees, especially the Finance Committee and the Committee on Elections, each of which consists of six Republicans and three Democrats.

The "Iron Clad" Oath Distasteful to the Democrats.

The House Judiciary Committee to-day agreed to report and recommend, for passage two bills repealing the "iron-clad" oath and the jurors' test oath prescribed by R. S. 820 of the Statutes, although a bill repealing it was enacted in 1872. The Committee decided to report favorably upon a bill allowing persons charged with crime to testify in their own behalf.

The House Committee on Military took testimony from Capt. Lewis Johnson of the 24th Infantry on the subject of the Texas border troubles, and will to-morrow hear General Ord and Lieut. Col. Mason on the same subject.

Troops for the Mexican Border.

Orders have been issued from the War Department for the departure of cavalry, artillery and infantry to the Rio Grande where they will be stationed in the interests of peace for the security of the people on the frontier from raiding parties. Six companies of McKenzie's 4th cavalry, latterly in Texas on the upper Rio Grande, will be ordered to a station on the border and one regiment of infantry from Minnesota with a battalion of artillery from Carlisle barracks will also be sent to the Rio Grande. From the War Department is not in consequence of any new complication. The people of Texas feel that there are not troops enough there and the Government is making this move to increase the force so as to do all possible to stop the raids, of which the country is well informed. It is mentioned at the War Department to-day that there is nothing officially that will indicate the probability of any serious trouble between the United States and Mexico.

A Railroad Bill

The bill introduced in the House to-day by Townsend of Pa., to amend section 5258 R. S. and regulate commerce by railroads among the several States, proposes to require railroads to receive and transport freight cars of other companies without charging any greater rate than is charged where the cars are the property of the road over which they pass. It prescribes as a penalty for any violation of this provision a forfeiture of three times the amount of damage sustained by the aggrieved parties to be paid to the latter.

Income Taxes.

Mr. Dibrell's bill to tax incomes provides for a tax of three per cent. on all amounts of income over $2,000.

The Cabinet Council

to-day was two hours long. Many subjects which received attention were the unconfirmed nominations to offices and other matters relating directly there. Indications favor the sending of several nominations to the Senate on Thursday, though in many cases in the list of offices left vacant by the failure of the Senate to confirm, no decisions were reached as to the names next to be presented.

Senator Patterson.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. The World's Washington special says it is believed Judge Humphreys will not be willing to surrender Senator Patterson on the requisition of Gov. Hampton of South Carolina, on the ground that he is not within the meaning of the law a fugitive from justice, but duly occupying a seat in the U. S. Senate as a representative of the State so calls him.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS.

In Massachusetts.

HAVERHILL, Dec. 4. Hon. Nathan S. Kimball was elected Mayor to-day, receiving 1,550 votes to 34 scattering. The standing of the new Board of Aldermen on the license question is the exact reverse of the present board. The prohibitionists have had full sway for two years past, but are completely routed.

FITCHBURG, Dec. 4. The election to-day resulted in the success of the Citizens' regular ticket, except four Councilmen and electing David H. Merriman, Mayor by a majority of 298.

SPRINGFIELD, Dec. 4. Emerson Wight, Republican, was elected to-day Mayor of this city for the fourth time by 700 majority and the rest of the Republican ticket was elected, except two members of the council.

William Whiting was elected Mayor of Holyoke without opposition.

J. Franklin Dyer, Republican, was elected Mayor of Gloucester by 50 majority. The Board of Aldermen stands five Republicans to 30 Democrats; Council, 19 Democrats and 11 Republicans.

MASSACHUSETTS.

Mr. Bowles' Condition To-day.

SPRINGFIELD, Dec. 4. There is no change in Mr. Bowles' condition and his physicians anticipate none, either way, for the next day or two. By that time an opinion as to the probability of his recovery can be formed.

THE INDIANS.

Depredations in the Black Hills.

DEADWOOD, Nov. 4. Reports of Indian depredations continue and several miners have arrived who report abandoning their camps in account of attacks by savages. Gen. Crook has been authorized by Sheridan to afford relief to freighters and settlements in the Hills.

The Runaway Sioux.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4. The reported stampede of Sioux Indians while on the way to their new agency on the Missouri River, receives earnest attention at the War and Interior Departments. There is fear it may cause wide spread demonstrations of hostility to the Government and white settlers. The agent for the Sioux has been instructed not to issue rations except at the agency, but to allow the Indians to select a camping ground near that station. Gen. Sheridan telegraphs he is afraid the Indians who broke away from Red Cloud's band have commenced depredations in the Black Hills and on the road leading thereto. Gen. Crook has been notified to give protection and punish the Indians if possible.

FOREIGN NEWS.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Comments on the Message.

LONDON, Dec. 4. The News, commenting on Hayes' message, says. The message deals principally with questions of localities of the country and remuneration of specie payments, and on both the President expresses himself with good sense and good feeling.

The Times says. President Hayes has not disappointed expectation. His message has no uncertain sound on the subject of currency legislation.

The Telegraph says: Notwithstanding the discouragements with which President Hayes has been met, the prudent and firm position he assumes in his message invites the support of the wisest and best portion of his countrymen.

FRANCE.

An Interview Between Dufaure and MacMahon

LONDON, Dec. 4. A Paris correspondent telegraphs that he has private information contradicting the French newspapers' account of the interview between Dufaure and President MacMahon. He says a few days ago Senator Duclerc presented to the Marshal an informal note asking him satisfaction to the Left to promise a revision of the constitution in a Republican sense. The Marshal sent for Dufaure to inform him that this condition was unacceptable. Dufaure replied that the Left desired a guarantee against a second dissolution and nothing could be easier than to find a guarantee which would not compromise the President's dignity. The correspondent concludes

"The foregoing is all that occurred, consequently there is no ground for thinking the temper of Elysee is changed. It is significant that the deputation of Paris merchants and manufacturers who went to Elysee Monday desiring to present an address to President MacMahon in person, were repelled by an aide-de-camp, who somewhat peremptorily referred them to the Minister of Commerce. The deputation retired, telling the aide-de-camp to inform the President that they were the vanguard of an imposing demonstration which numbered a thousand to-day, and would number one hundred thousand to-morrow and a million the next day."

THE EASTERN WAR.

Suleiman Pasha's Movements.

LONDON, Dec. 4. Concerning Suleiman Pasha's movements reported from Constantinople yesterday, where it was stated he was believed to be engaged in a strong effort near Osman Bazar, the Telegraph's Shumla special says Sunday night: No official news received here since Thursday. Important movements are imminent if not already progressing. Great anxiety prevails and many rumors are circulating.—Among them, that heavy fighting occurred Friday in the direction of Tirnova, from which place the Russian cavalry were driven back, losing over 3,000 men, and that the Turks are now bombarding Tirnova. All available surgeons and dressers are going hence to Osman Bazar.

Rumors at Shumla and correspondents' impressions seem to confirm the report that Suleiman Pasha is endeavoring to effect an important diversion by cutting the Russian communications along the northern slope of the Balkans.

Mehemet Ali's Battle.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 4. Mehemet Ali telegraphed from Kamarli yesterday, as follows: To-day, after violently cannonading our positions at Kamarli from the heights of Etropol and Orchanie, the Russians furiously attacked our left wing. The battle continued until evening and we retained our positions. The enemy retreated with considerable loss. Pursuit was prevented by the thickly wooded country. We shall take the offensive to-morrow. The Russian Imperial Guard was engaged.

THE POPE.

Slightly Better.

NEW YORK, Dec. 4. A Rome despatch says it is thought the Pope died Sunday night and a rumor to that effect has been believed even in the Vatican. Immense crowds gathered at St. Peters, Monday. The truth is the Pope is slightly better. A silver tube has been inserted into the sore on his leg, which will make a safety valve and may prolong his life several days.

In an Alarming Condition.

The Pope's condition continues alarming. His weakness is such that the closing of the issue in his leg has been necessary, notwithstanding the risk.

THE HANDEL rehearsal last evening was well attended and a profitable session was held. The programme for the "Social Hour" was as follows: Song—"The last to sight to memory dear," was very finely sung by Mr. Holden; piano solo, "Call me thine own," was rendered in a very pleasing manner by Miss Evans; and the song entitled "Monks of old" was sung in good voice and with a great deal of expression by Mrs. Moody.

OPENING ASSEMBLY. The first in a series of six assemblies under the management of Messrs. C. E. Hill and S. W. Jones, occurred at Music Hall last evening, and was an exceedingly pleasant affair. A fine order of dances had been arranged, and the music by Andrews' Orchestra was even better than usual, which is saying a great deal. Some fifty couples were on the floor and the dancing was continued until a late hour when all started for home feeling that they had thoroughly enjoyed the evening.

The Sociable to come off at City Hall, under the auspices of the Women's Crusade, has a new feature. The first hour of the evening is devoted to singing, declamations and short speeches. The last part of the evening is the more sociable. A signal will be given when all conversation, except by sings, gesticulations and facial expression shall cease. Any person breaking the silence by speaking or otherwise, will suffer the penalty of five cents fine. These entertainments have been very popular in the West, and the Crusaders hope to see a full house.

OBITUARY. Asa Matthews, Esq., of Newport, who died at his residence on the 29th of November last in the 74th year of his age, was born in Searsport and resided there till the period of his majority. He graduated at Waterville College, now Colby University, in the class of 1829, and soon after became principal of Hampden Academy, which place he filled for the period of twelve years. Subsequently he was principal of an Academy at North Carolina for several years, and his active life was mostly spent in teaching. He was a resident of Newport for thirty years. He was a man of stern integrity and took a deep interest in the education and moral improvement of the rising generation. He merited the esteem of all who knew him and will be much missed by the community where he spent the most of his life. He leaves a widow and one son, S. W. Matthews, Esq., of Hampden, to mourn his loss.

"BANGOR RIFLE." The entertainment in the vestry of the Hammond-st. church last evening, under the auspices of the "Bangor Rifle," connected with that society, was well attended, the vestry being crowded full The exercise opened with the children's operetta of "Bob Shaftoe," very well done by several small children. After this came Beethoven's Symphony of a "delightful," very finely executed by several young ladies. The duett, "Quaker Song," by Miss Henry and Master Davis, in costume, was well sung and afforded a great deal of amusement for the audience. The duett "Master and Scholar," by Mrs Crowell and Mr Durgin, was one of the best selections of the evening and received warm applause at the close. Miss Laughton read a fine selection, and in response to a hearty encore, she read a humorous piece. The duett by Miss Thurston on the piano and Master Palmer on the violin, was very enthusiastically received The entertainment concluded with a reading by Miss Burns. At the close of the entertainment refreshments were served, after which the many beautiful fancy articles received due attention.

A DISGRACEFUL AFFAIR We learn from the policemen the following particulars of a very disgraceful affair which occurred in this city last night: Between one and two o'clock, this morning, the police were notified that members of the Jameson Guard had stolen a barrel of lager beer from the Union Block Club, and were throwing bottles about the armory and making a great disturbance. The police immediately started out, and on arrival at the armory City found the door locked on the inside, but one of the officers luckily had a key that fitted the lock and they entered the room and arrested Capt. James Davis, Sergent Henry Adams and four other members of the company and placed them in the station house. The beer stood in the hall near the door of the armory and they had opened the door and rolled the barrel in and began thinking, and soon arrived at that stage where they lost all control of themselves. There will be a feeling of great regret that such a stigma should be cast on an organization that has always been held in high esteem by our citizens We think that this about time that the authorities were looking after these institutions that are leaving their beer lying around loose.

Police Court

Yesterday, James Lyons, John Dougherty and James Kelley were bound over in the sum of $300 to appear at the February term of the Supreme Court, Lyons and Dougherty gave bail, but Kelley being unable to get bail was committed to jail

James Doyle came up for breaking windows in the Abbott-square school-house, and Judge Gardeton reserved his sentence.

Business Items.

People of comparatively small means are often perplexed as to what present they shall make their wives, which shall be at once cheap and acceptable. If nothing else they can send for that admirable household and fashion magazine, "Andrews' Bazar." This is full of articles contributed by excellent writers and correspondents—stories, sketches, criticisms, facetiæ and poetry. Its household hints and fashion department are simply unsurpassed, the latter being illustrated in the most varied manner with plates. Patterns are furnished at small cost when desired This periodical is published by W. R. Andrews, at Cincinnati.

Messrs. Schumacher Bros. propose to exhibit in the Art Rooms, next week, a collection of Oil Paintings from the cascels of some of our leading American artists, with a few from European sources. Their facilities for securing the most desirable works of art are such that it is safe to predict a better exhibition than has ever been open this side of Boston The collection will consist of about 120 Paintings, Brown, Webber, Snow, Schmitz, J. B. Sword, and other favorites, will be well represented on the catalogue. It

CUT THIS OUT—IT MAY SAVE YOUR LIFE. Think is no person living but what suffers more or less with Lung Disease, Coughs, Colds or Consumption, yet some would die rather than pay 75 cents for a bottle of medicine that would cure them. THE AMOUNT OF TESTIMONY in favor of Dr. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, as a sure cure for Consumption, far exceeds all that can be brought to support the pretensions of any other medicine. See Dr. Schenck's Almanac, which can be had of any Druggist, free of charge, containing the certificates of many persons of the highest respectability, who have been restored to health, after being pronounced incurable by physicians of acknowledged ability. Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup alone has cured many, as these evidences will show; but the cure is often promoted by the employment of two other remedies which Dr. Schenck provides for the purpose. These additional remedies are Schenck's Sea-Weed Tonic and Mandrake Pills. By the timely use of these medicines, according to directions, Dr. Schenck certifies that most any case of Consumption can be cured. Every moment of delay makes your cure more difficult, and all depends on the judicious choice of a remedy. Schenck's Mandrake Pills are an agreeable, and safe cure for Consumption caused by biliousness, and also for sallow complexion and coated tongue. There is no better remedy for disordered stomach, and all the evils resulting therefrom. Dr. Schenck is professionally at his principal office, corner Sixth and Arch streets, Philadelphia, every Monday, where all letters for advice must be addressed. Schenck's Medicines are for sale by all Druggists. 1m dol.

PREPARE for the WINTER.

Sash Balances, Door Spring

SEASONABLE HINTS.—If from your poultry you desire eggs, more of them extend and internal (the latter by heat producing stimulating food) must be given now, than during the Spring and Summer season. Remembering always that the production of eggs in Winter is unnatural means must be afforded to gain this end. Remember, also, if your birds are rare, choice specimens, and the eggs are for table use, you may pay dear for them. How? Consider for a moment. Egg production naturally is confined to two seasons, the Spring and Summer; if by forcing, the two seasons were lengthened to three, almost four, must it not be at the expense vitality? May not shortness of life be the result? Nature is a unit; you cannot add to one quarter but at the expense of another. To the farmer whose poultry profits are when eggs are high we would say feed well, give good stimulating food, give warmth and protection, and you will be rewarded. But to the fanciers—whose profit is in eggs for hatching, whose prize is gratified by the show-room award—don't force your birds. Do not crowd them either for work or for room. Give just sufficient warmth for perfect health. Remember that nature cares for her own. If our birds are in heated quarters the feathering will be light and thin. If in cooler it will be heavy and perfect. The eggs, if the laying be delayed until nature herself favors, will produce stronger and healthier chicks, and the percentage be greater than if the result of a forcing, cramming, artificial feeding and care. Let your care and effort be for perfect condition, and the result will be if your stock is good, perfect plumage, and but few clear eggs when the hatching season arrives.

SIGNS OF A PROSPEROUS FARMER.—When you see a barn larger than his house, it shows that he will have large profits of small inflations. When you see him driving his work, instead of his work driving him, it shows that he will never be driven from good resolutions and that he will certainly work his way to prosperity. When you always see in his woodhouse a sufficiency for three months or more, it shows that he will be more than a ninety days wonder, in farming operations, and that he is not sleeping in his house after a drunken frolic. When his sled is housed in summer, and his farming implements covered both winter and summer, it plainly shows that he will have a good house over his head in the summer of his early life and the winter of old age. When his cattle are properly sheltered and fed in winter, it evinces that he is acting according to Scripture, which says that "a merciful man is merciful to his beast." When he is seen with a clubbing for a paper and paying in advance, it shows that he is speaking like a book respecting the last improvements in agriculture, and that he never gets his waiting papers to the land of poverty.

SAVE THE OLD PAPER.—Never throw away old paper. If you have no wish to sell it, put it in the house. Some housekeepers prefer it to cloth for cleaning many articles of furniture. For instance, a volume written by a lady who prided herself on her experience and tact, says: "After a stove has been blackened, it can be kept looking very well for a long time by rubbing it with paper every morning. Rubbing with paper is a much nicer way of keeping the outside of a tea kettle, coffee pot and tea pot bright and clean than the old way of washing them in suds. Rubbing with paper is also the best way of polishing knives, tinware and spoons, they shine like new silver. For polishing mirrors, windows, lamp chimneys, etc., paper is far better than dry cloth. Preserves and pickles keep much better if brown paper, instead of cloth, is laid over the jar. Canned fruit is not so apt to mould if a piece of writing paper is put to fit the can, instead of a cloth top. Paper is much better than a carpet to put under a carpet, instead of straw. It is warmer, tighter, and makes less noise when one walks over it."

GROWING SPRAYS IN THE HOUSE.—The beautiful Winter climber—the graceful queen of decorative vines—is adapted alike to the greenhouse and conservatory. The ivy leaf is one the will. Boston florists, by use of whom it is extensively grown as a decorative vine. With very little care it can be grown successfully as a house plant. The seed should be sown in a box or in pots, in the house, should be kept moist till the young plants appear. The seedlings rather slow to germinate, you must not think it bad if it does not make its appearance in two weeks. The young plants should be potted off into three-inch pots as soon as they are three or four inches high. Once a year the bulbs should be allowed to dry of and rest; they will start into growth again in about six weeks. The vine does not require the full sun, but it will grow in a partially-shaded situation. It can be trained on a small trellis across the window or around pictures. It is a climbing vine, and will attach itself to a string, just about the right condition to use for wreaths, etc., or when required for lighter work, the branches which become entangled can be separated.

A Rome belle says this may be an off year but she has had an offer.—Rome Sentinel.

The three things most difficult are—to keep a secret, to forget an injury, and to make good use of leisure.

"Tickle me when I'm sad, Mother!" is the new song in the mother series, sung in the New Orleans Picayune office.

When four women are walking abreast on the pavement, they will break ranks for nothing except a man with a paint bot.

After a recent wedding in one of the Boston suburbs, the band serenaded the couple with the peculiar happy and flattering song known as, "The monkey married the baboon's sister."

Serpents, they say, have power to charm. We probably learned the art in her famous interview with the serpent in the garden, and taught it to her daughters, and so women and serpents are charming.

A writer says that when a swimmer gets the cramp, he should turn his toes toward the knee. Another good way is to turn your toes toward the middle of the pond and pray for the nearest dry land.

"Great age" this well we in. People don't laugh now-a-days—they indulge in merriment. They don't walk—they promenade. They never eat any food—they masticate it. Nobody has a tooth pulled—it is extracted. No one has his feelings hurt—they are lacerated.

"Have you any marble or plaster busts of Psyche?" asked a Chicago lady at an art store. "No," was the reply of the polite but rather verdant clerk, "we have busts of most all the great men, but none of Sankey." The woman did not attempt an explanation.

The New York Tribune says the place for Cleopatra's Needle—when it arrives—is that point which is daily passed by the greatest number of citizens." We should think the temperance people of that city would strongly object to having the ancient obelisk set up in front of a beer saloon.

An Illinois clergyman is reported to have said, the other day, at the laying of the corner stone of a new meeting-house! "If boys and girls do their sparking in churches, I say amen to it. I have a daughter whom I cherish as the apple of my eye. When she is of suitable age, I would rather she should be courted in the house of God than in a theatre."

An amusing incident occurred in a Connecticut district school a few days since. A little boy, six years old, was seen to whisper, but denied doing so when reproved by the teacher; he was told to remain after school, when the teacher, trying to impress upon his youthful mind the sinfulness of not speaking the truth, asked him if they did not tell him in the Sunday school where bad boys went who told falsehoods. Choking with sobs he said: "Yes, marm, it is a place where there is a fire, but I don't just remember the name of the town."

Governor Zebulon Vance tells us of a New Orleans man who died and left the seventh article in his will as follows: "Whereas it seems that my son John is inclined to play poker, which is a dangerous game to tinker with, unless you know what you are doing; therefore I leave my son John $10,000, that he may go to Halifax, North Carolina, and learn how to play the game."—Detroit Free Press.

INVIGORATING BATH.—A teaspoonful or more of borax thrown into the bath tub while bathing will communicate velvety softness to the water, and at the same time invigorate and rest the bather, persons troubled with nervousness or wakeful nights, will find this kind of bath a great benefit.

LETTER CARRIERS.

All letters are delivered free by carriers when addressed to street and numbers. People should inform their correspondents of above and have their letters addressed accordingly.

Persons having their address at the General Delivery can also have their letters sent, but it is much more convenient to have the street and number, and they will be delivered earlier than if the same is put on at the Office. Carriers make two deliveries daily, the first trip supplying the extremes of their routes.

Collections are made morning and evening in season for important mails—the down town boxes fifteen and the up town boxes thirty minutes before closing mails at the office.

Holders of the Carrier's Window will be open for the delivery of letters from 6½ to 9½ A. M., and from 1 to 6½ P. M. Sundays from 1 to 9½ A. M.

Any irregularities in the carriers' department should be reported to the office.

ENVELOPES.

No additional charge will be made for printing the name and request to return, across the left hand upper corner of the envelopes furnished by the Post Office Department, samples of which may be seen at the Carrier's window, when ordered in lots of not less than 500.

A request for the return of a letter to the writer, if inclosed within thirty days, or less, written or printed, with the writer's name, post office and State, across the left end of the envelope, on the face side, will be complied with.

☞ The public are earnestly recommended to procure stamped envelopes with printed return request, as the expense is less, and letters thus treated, not delivered, to any person addressed, are returned to the writer free of charge.

First class envelopes of above furnished at $2.8 per thousand.

Stamps cut from Stamped Envelopes cannot be used to prepay postage. The use of such stamps is prohibited by a fine of fifty dollars.

Stamped Envelopes, spoiled in directing, are redeemed at this office.
